SUPPLEMENT TO REPORT NO.

1. Among the most active Mongol military workers under Inner Mongolian Communist leader Uljiochir (Uljwachir, Wulji Ochar, etc.) is Saksoga (Chinese phoneticization: Sa Ko Szu Ka/ also known as Hei Ho/  ).
2. Saksoga was born in Harchia Left Flank Center Banner (Darhan Banner), Jirun League, and is about 45 or 46 years old. Prior to the establishment of Manchoukuo, he was the leader of about 300 bandits who were active in the region around Tungliao (122-14, 43-38). After Manchoukuo was established he disbanded his force and engaged in farming. When the people of Hsingan Province were agitated by the outbreak of the Nomonhan Incident in 1939, he gathered his former followers together and returned to banditry. He was soon won over by representatives of Prince TE's Government and he joined the troops under TE and became the commander of a special guerrilla cavalry regiment, in which capacity he was active against Nationalist and Chinese Communist troops.
3. After the Japanese surrender in 1945 he was taken to the Mongolian People's Republic (MPR) with an unknown number of his troops as prisoners of the MPR. In July 1947 he returned to Shilingol League with about 60 of his men, having undergone Communist training and indoctrination in the MPR.
4. Since his return to Inner Mongolia from the MPR he has been operating independently and occasionally with the troops of Uljiochir. Prior to the fall of Kalgan on 23 September 1948, Chinese Kuomintang secret police and representatives of FU Tso-wei kept him under close surveillance.
